

bp Community Engagement Efforts

At bp, caring for others is one of our core beliefs, and supporting the community we operate in is just one of the ways we demonstrate that core belief. We promote transparency in our operations and involve community members every step of the way.

Open house events:

- bp will host at least six open houses in northwest Indiana to help inform the community about the details of the proposed project.
- Open houses will be a one-on-one format consisting of booths staffed by bp subject matter experts to provide the community with an opportunity to connect and engage with bp staff.
- Booths will represent all elements of the proposed project including the Whiting refinery, safety, community benefits, landowner outreach and seismic data collection.

Community engagement consultants:

- bp's community engagement consultants are local Indiana residents who are on the ground in the communities where we work.
- Our community engagement consultants work with local businesses, community members, landowners and more to provide information and ensure transparency and engagement every step of the way.
- bp will be setting up storefronts in each of the six counties to provide community members an opportunity to give feedback and get answers to any questions they may have.

The community:

- It is important to us that information about our projects is shared openly and transparently with all community members and community groups.
- bp is committed to engaging with all community members and all community groups to earn their support and trust as we develop projects.

Scholarships & community programs:

- Northwest Indiana has a long list of community organizations that make the area a great place to live and work.
- bp is proud to support many of these organizations and their efforts in educating the next generation, conserving Indiana's natural resources and empowering young people. These organizations include:
